

Occupational Safety and Health Management (OSH)

The identification of hazards in the workplace goes a long way to preventing injuries and incidents in the workplace.

This protects local governments' most valuable asset – its people!

Our team consists of experienced OSH professionals who work across your organisation to identify OSH hazards and associated risks to your employees, contractors and volunteers. These Specialist OSH Consultants are available state wide to provide assistance in the development and implementation of preventative and targeted strategies throughout all levels of local government, which can aid with reducing the likelihood of injuries, diseases and incidents (including near misses).
